ABSTRACT

Information is processed about network faults that contribute to a failure of a network element in which the faults are occurring. Traps are sent to a network management station with respect to 5   fewer than all of the faults that are occurring, based on the results of the information processing.

20373107